Heart Health Tracker Use Case:

While there are multiple applications available for tracking health, based on research, there are none providing researchers with open access to data sets generated by the application.

There are users who would like to track their heart health, while also contribute to heart health research.

These users are likely those experiencing concerns over their own or a loved ones heart health.